kWh: KINSHIP WITH HAITI

June 12th, 2018

Dr. Delia Heck will present "kWh: Kinship with Haiti."

Delia R. Heck, Ph.D., shares experiences from her sabbatical working with Haitian and American partners on solar energy projects in rural villages in Haiti. From the central plateau to the southern coast of Haiti, learn about the intersection of sustainable energy, economic development and social justice as a means of sustainably empowering individuals, families, schools and communities. The program will also discuss the role of faith institutions in the international development arena

Dr. Delia Heck is the Associate Professor of Environmental Science at the School of Natural Sciences and Mathematics at Ferrum College. She has been teaching at Ferrum College for 17 years, including courses such as Environmental Planning and Development, Physical Geography, Geographic Information Systems, Natural Resource Management, Natural Resource Policy and Economics and Micro- and Macroeconomics. She is the Director of the Environmental Science programs and Co-Director of Ferrum College's Quality Enhancement Plan: Critical Thinking for Success. Her research interests include energy policy, economics, global climate change, and water quality. She is the Associate Director of the Smith Mountain Lake Water Quality Monitoring program, focused on using GIS mapping to present water quality data to the public and to project management. Dr. Heck earned her Bachelor of Science degree in Regional Development from the University of Arizona and her Masters of Arts and Ph.D. in Economic Geography from the University of Washington.
