

Meet the Band

“Jared, Margo, & Raistlin”

Jared Boyd grew up in Carroll County, Virginia and has been playing old time music for the past 17 years. He is a member of the Twin Creeks Stringband, a continuation of the Dry Hill Draggers, and has won blue ribbons for his clawhammer banjo playing at several fiddlers conventions in the Southwest Virginia and Northwest North Carolina area, including the Best All Around Performer award at the Galax fiddlers convention.

Margo MacSweeney is a young old time musician who lives in Floyd County, Virginia. Margo enjoys playing fiddle, banjo, and guitar and singing and dancing old time traditional music from Southwest Virginia. She is a part of The Handmade Music School at The Floyd Country Store.

Raistlin Brabson is an old time musician from Franklin County, Virginia. He began by playing percussion and guitar in local bands until picking up his great grandfather’s fiddle 3 years ago. Inspired by local masters and the likes of Clark Kessinger, Hank Williams, and Kenny Baker, Raistlin brings driving dance music and classic country with him wherever he goes.
